- Strategic entry into the Nurse Practitioner business brings a higher skill level and useful connecting point integral to development of healthcare delivery model
- New health assessment capabilities provide key element in evolution of improved care planning and delivery as healthcare delivery and reimbursement models evolve
- Management team has significant development experience in logistics, software, preventive medicine, and innovative technology-enabled healthcare services
- John Shermyen, Ingenios Health CEO, to lead Almost Family's Healthcare Innovations segment
- Performed over 10,000 in-home assessment visits in 2014

Company Comments

William B. Yarmuth, Chairman and CEO commented on the investment: "We are extremely excited to make this very strategic investment to participate in the rapidly evolving areas of health risk assessments and care coordination. By using nurse practitioners to conduct comprehensive health assessments in patients' homes and physician practices, we believe Ingenios will provide a foundational basis for improved care planning and delivery with meaningful cost savings. We look forward to developing the Ingenios model in markets in which we currently provide home health and ACO services as well as in new markets we can develop together."

John Shermyen, CEO of Ingenios commented: "Ingenios was founded on the basic principle that intelligent prevention is the key to providing true care coordination and improved patient quality to reduce the overall medical burden and improve patient's quality of care, a principle we feel is a perfect complement to Almost Family's long-term strategic vision. I am truly excited to have the opportunity to lead the Healthcare Innovation segment, and to be an investor and participant in the continuation of Almost Family's growth strategy."

Yarmuth concluded: “We are extremely pleased to welcome John Shermyen and his outstanding management team who will take a leadership role in our HealthCare Innovations segment. We believe the evolution of the US healthcare delivery system will ultimately require providers to accept financial risk for the clinical and cost outcomes we produce. We also believe assessment, care planning and innovative technology capabilities are essential as we position ourselves to succeed in that environment. We expect this transaction along with John’s long-track record of growing and developing innovative businesses such as Logisticare to be real assets for us as we continue to evolve our business model to address the challenges of the rapidly changing US healthcare delivery system.”

Prior to founding Ingenios, Mr. Shermyen was the founder and former CEO of LogistiCare Solutions, an access management company serving some 13 million Medicaid and Medicare Advantage lives in 43 states. Under John’s leadership LogistiCare grew to revenues of over $460 million primarily from capitated non-emergency medical transportation programs.

Terms of the Transaction

Almost Family has acquired 100% of the equity of Ingenios for approximately 260,000 shares of Almost Family common stock plus $2 million in cash. Ingenios is expected to be mildly dilutive to EPS in 2015 and accretive to EPS in 2017. The Company will include the operations of Ingenios in its Healthcare Innovations reporting segment.
